One of the new landmarks of growth at Ohio University is the tower of Jefferson Hall, largest of the 12 East Green dormitories. Each building has a unique interior design distinguishing it from the others. The article beginning on page 8 explains how the distinctive personality of Jefferson Hall was achieved. ALTHOUGH educational television is in its infancy, it has made spectacular advancements in its six years. Well over a million students are getting at least part of their formal education over television.

Ohio University's television setup comes under the "closed-circuit" category. Ohio U's is one of some 300 closed-circuit installations in schools and colleges throughout the country.

As with any innovation, educational television has had to overcome growing pains. As new ideas come up they are evaluated and tested and if they can improve educational TV, they are incorporated.

Many pupils have expressed a preference for television teaching to conventional classroom teaching. The students say there are fewer distractions and the teachers seem better prepared. In most educational television experiments, student's grades are as good or better than those under conventional classroom instruction.

Educational television has passed the test, so to speak. But its effects have definite benefits in this time when good teachers are so much in demand. Television in schools can help overcome the present critical shortage of teachers and classrooms.

Another illustration of the attention being given to educational television is the $34,439 grant awarded to Ohio U. from the United States Office of Education. The grant, which is under the provision of Title 7 of the National Defense Act, will provide for investigation to learn what techniques can be adapted for the teacher to use in the classroom.

ON HIS WAY to the studio, Dr. Trisolini stops in the control room and observes a student selecting a picture on a control monitor.

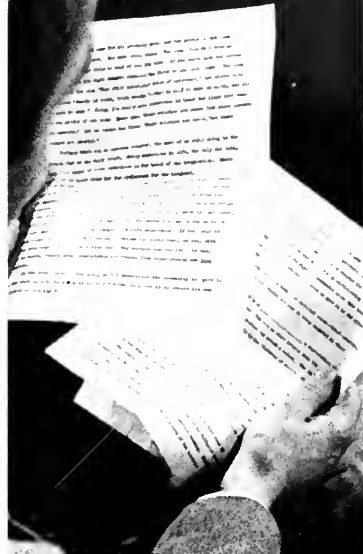

Another positive feature of educational television is that it enables the most talented teachers to extend the influence of their teaching. One teacher can teach as many students as it would take a conventional instructor, lecturing five regular classes a day, 1300 years to teach.

Last year the Alumnus presented a series of illustrations to show the facilities Ohio University had installed for closed-circuit television. Here, in picture-story form, is a description of the daily Fine Arts TV Production.

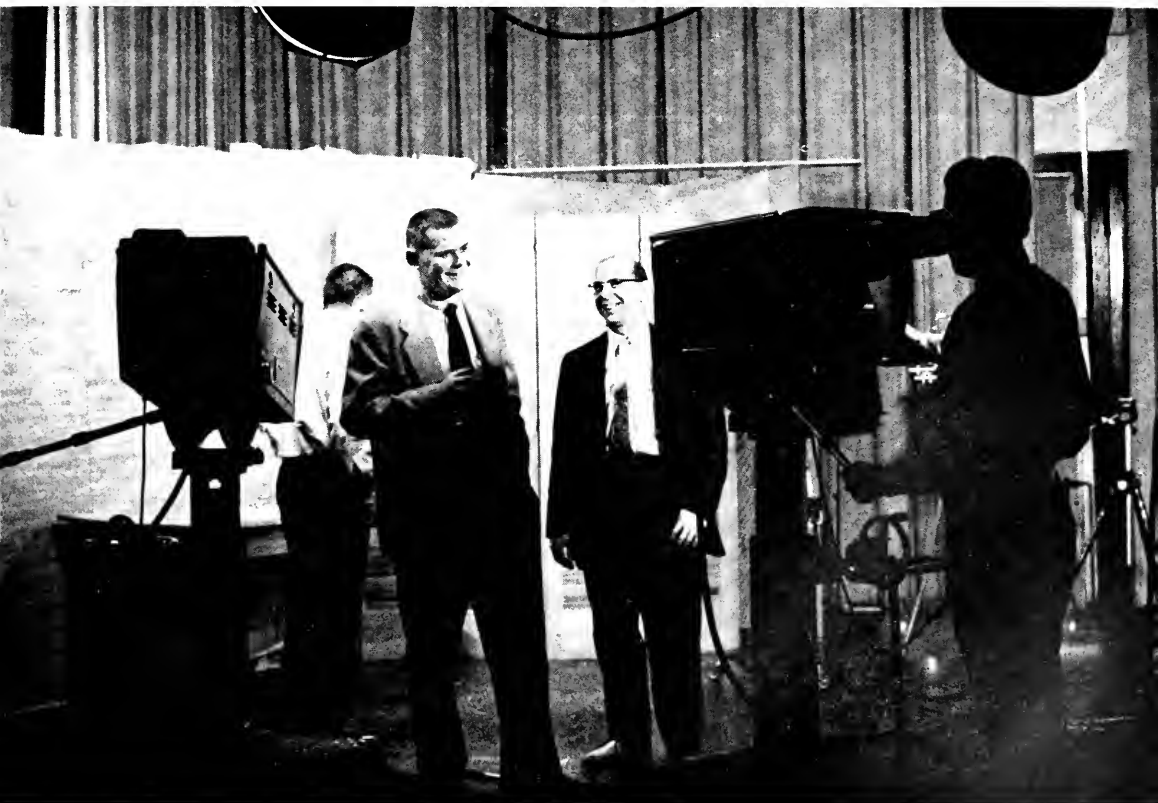

THE AUDIO man gets ready to play the theme to introduce the Fine Arts presentation which is viewed by approximately 660 students in six classrooms. Following the television program, the instructor in each classroom leads the discussion on the material presented.

AS HE ENTERS the studio he sees Director Craig Johnson and Engineer Arthur Haer in a final production conference. Others in the picture are camera operators.

TAKING a last look at his script, Dr. Trisolini reviews a few points before going into the studio.

NOW IN PLACE before the cameras, Dr. Trisolini keeps his eye on the floor manager who alerts him and informs him with a hand motion that "you're on." The ear phones keep the floor manager in contact with the director in the control room and he can direct Trisolini as to camera switches.

A GLANCE OFF to the side gives Trisolini an idea of what the picture looks like that is going into the classrooms.

ANOTHER GLANCE to the left—Trisolini observes the audio man and the switcher in the control room. In the background is the director who keeps a discerning eye on the studio operation through a soundproof window as well as the control room operation.

STUDENTS FROM the theatre department give a dramatic illustration of Trisolini's talk.

TRISOLINI leaves the television building on College St. and goes next door to the Speech Building.

AS HE WALKS down the hall, he sees students in a classroom watching the scene. Each week a professor prepares a script and rehearses with the staff. Various aspects of art are discussed in this series—one week the instructor may give a pottery making demonstration and the next week perhaps a professor will discuss a phase of modern art.

Dorms Have Personalities

A good deal of planning goes into the interior decoration of each new dormitory.

Here is an explanation of the various details taken into consideration in the planning of Jefferson Hall.

ANYONE ENTERING Ohio University's East Green dormitories becomes immediately aware of the characteristic design that gives each building its own personality.

But only a professional eye would recognize the myriad details that went into each distinctive decor.

An interesting illustration can be found in an explanation of the planning behind the interior decorating of Jefferson Hall, largest of the 12 East Green dormitories.

The entire interior decoration, which received national recognition, was planned by Margaret K. Davis, director of residence services, and Edna M. Way, professor of space arts.

Designed for housing 379 women, Jefferson Hall was erected at a cost of $2,300,000. Furnishing cost an additional $100,873.

A library, equipped as a subsidiary to the main campus

GUEST LOUNGE is divided into five distinct sections: alcoves on either side of the stairs, two end sections, and the music area.

library, contains some 4000 literary and standard reference books, primarily for use by freshmen and sophomores.

Conference rooms are provided for meetings of student governing bodies from all 12 dormitories, and four classrooms in the dormitory are arranged for seminar sessions. These can be used also for summer workshops.

Two terraces, looking out over the dormitory area, are arranged to open into overflow lounging spots adjacent to a snack bar.

In addition to these student facilities, Jefferson Hall has four apartments for administrative personnel and a 125-car garage in the basement.

Since it was designed as the operational hub of East Green, the interior design and decoration was keyed to this over-all purpose.

Mural Decorates Cafeteria

The first floor can be likened to a terminal area, with traffic turning left for the cafeteria, right for the library and class rooms, and toward the stairway for the second floor guest lounge and on up to the living quarters. For this reason the unique lobby was left unfurnished except for a group of three stools on the east and west halls. Walls in the lobby, the open stairway and the second floor lounge are paneled in oak.

Floors throughout the building are black and white asphalt tile laid in large squares. They will blend with any color scheme, making future redecoration easy.

In the air-conditioned library, which has room for 125 students, the color scheme harmonizes with the binding of the books. Chairs are sturdy, to withstand sliding, and the sizes and shapes of tables are varied to relieve monotony and to accommodate both students who prefer solitude and those who prefer to study in groups.

In the combination snack bar and cafeteria 1000 students eat three meals a day and snack until 11 p.m. each night. The decorating objective here is aimed at creating an atmosphere of youth, dignity and charm. Stockwell's mural, "Mardi Gras", appears on one wall.

Since the room is very long, the space is broken with a polka dot paper on the pillars, and a 30-inch divider, topped with wrought iron grating divides the snack bar from the dining room. This grating matches the bird cage motif in the mural.

Early American In Girls Lounge

During meal hours the snack bar serves as an addition for the cafeteria dining room. In between meal hours it is a small unit in itself. On warm evenings the snack bar crowd can overflow onto the terrace.

In the dining room are striped tables of grey and gold. These colors were taken from awnings in the mural. Rows of caribbean and midly blue and gold chairs run in straight lines on the dining room floor. The wrought iron frames on the chairs match the mauve dot on the wallpaper. Even the trays are bright grey and caribbean blue.

IN STUDENTS' ROOMS, asphalt tile floors in marbelized black and white blacks and "acoustone" ceilings aid studying by helping reduce noise. The storage wall is strictly functional.

The center rows of tables are collapsible and can be removed to provide a large area for dancing.

In the colorful lounge at the top of the open stairway, coeds meet their dates in a setting taken from an Oriental screen, four sections of which hang over the couch against one wall. The remaining section is hung over a cabinet on the opposite wall. Lacquer boxes and museum copies of Chinese art and pottery decorate the lounge.

A third-floor lounge, exclusively for the girls, has a homespun quality. Furniture is a warm, brown cherry. A cabinet conceals a television and hi-fi set and supplies storage for records, and card tables are arranged about the room for bridge-minded coeds.

A hutch conceals party dishes and its shelves contain a variety of collectors items. Pictures are Audibon prints and Utrillo water colors. Ornaments are early American glassware. A variety of growing plants and braided rugs give the room a feeling of home.

Students rooms are strictly functional, although careful attention was given to blending colors into a pleasant scheme.

To the Past—For the Future

Ohio University's Education Building is a modern answer to recurring questions concerning the problem of staffing an ever increasing number of elementary and secondary schools.

By Charles Walters and Alan Eisner

APRIL 29 marked the dedication of Ohio University's newly completed College of Education Building. This new building is the modern successor to the State Normal College established in 1902.

The Normal College Building was made possible through the efforts of the Ohio University President at that time of Alston Ellis and the passage of the Seese bill. The building which was named after President Ellis was completed in May of 1904. Within four years the North and South wings were added, thus making it the largest and most costly building on campus and the first one erected at state expense for the preparation of teachers.

In the basement of the building a Model School was opened which housed eight grades. Its purpose was to provide facilities for student observation of teaching methods and student teaching. In 1912 the Model School was relocated in a new building on Park Place and University Terrace. Today, this building is known as Music Hall.

The preparatory school and the high school classes of the training school were united to form John Hancock High

HEAD OF THE University's growing program of teacher training is Dean F. N. Hamblin, left, who has been at Ohio University since 1955. At right is Dr. Giffard Crowell, assistant dean, who will head the College's Nigerian project next year. He will be succeeded as assistant dean by Dr. Russell Milliken (see "On the Green").

COLLEGE OF EDUCATION Building, opened last fall, is nearly a block long, has 18 classrooms, three laboratories, a library, several seminar rooms and faculty office space.

School. This high school met a need for student teaching on a high school level.

Because of the increasing number of students and the lack of student teaching facilities, arrangements were made with the Athens city schools to place student teachers in all the schools.

Rufus Putnam Hall

In 1923 nearly three acres of land were purchased for a new training school. It was located on East Union St. and was called "Rufus Putnam Hall." The building, which opened in 1926, housed two kindergartens, six grades, several classes in education and art education and a special education class. In 1933 it became known as the University Elementary School.

Arrangements were made with The Plains for student teaching in both elementary and secondary classes in 1925.

The million dollar building which is located next to the University Elementary School is currently meeting the needs of approximately 1200 students. Some of its facilities include a guidance center, a reading laboratory, a statistics laboratory, an audio-visual center and a library.

Dr. Benjamin C. Willis, superintendent of schools in Chicago, was the featured speaker at the dedicatory ceremonies. Dr. Willis has long experience in school administration, and holds an A. B. from George Washington University, an A. M. from the University of Maryland, an Ed. D. from Columbia University, and the L. L. D. degree from Northwestern University.

He and President John C. Baker were sent to Cambodia by the U. S. State Department in 1958 to study the educational system of that country, preparatory to making recommendations for an American assistance program.

The festivities on the 29th started with a meeting of the education faculty and Dr. Willis at 10 a.m. There was a luncheon in the University Center at noon. After the address, visitors were given tours of the new building.

Dedication Committee

A committee of six, with Dr. R. L. Morton as chairman, was responsible for the arrangements on the dedication day. Other members of the committee were Dean F. N. Hamblin, Russell A. Milliken, Harry Lackey, Gertrude Linenbruegge, and Mabel Olson.

Poet Robert Frost

Frost Visits Campus

ON MARCH 30 Ohio U. students and faculty literally packed into Memorial Auditorium to listen to the dean of American poets, Robert Frost, read selections from his great works.

The 85-year-old poet arrived on campus a day before the convocation date and walked the campus walks and stopped to chat with students. Later that day he attended a press conference and in the evening two receptions were held in his honor.

This outstanding figure in American poetry said during his Ohio U. visit that he enjoys visiting colleges and talking with young people because he learns so much from the things they tell him.

Faculty Briefs

DONALD ROBERTS, assistant professor of design, received the highest merit award in the Columbus Art League May Show for his collage, "Mutuality March, 1960". The Art League Show will be on display until May 29 at the Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts.

Other University people who received awards at the show were: David F. Driesbach, Henry Lin and John Baldwin.

Ralph D. Smith, assistant professor of mechanical engineering, conducted a workshop for the sixth annual conference of the Mid-Ohio Valley

Management Council at Marietta College. The theme was "Job Evaluation and Merit Rating—Cure or Curse."

A reader for intermediate German classes, written by Dr. Paul Krauss, will be published this spring by Henry Holt and Co. of New York. The 196 page text is built around a story by Manfred Hausman, one of the outstanding writers in West Germany today.

Dr. Krauss has also completed a second book on German grammar which will be published later this year by Appleton-Century-Crofts, Inc.

Chemistry Gets Grant

A GRANT IN the amount of $23,600 has been awarded to Ohio University for support of basic research in chemistry.

The project, titled "The Reaction of Silver Ions with Acetylacetonate Chelate Compounds," will be directed by Dr. Robert J. Kline, associate professor of chemistry.

New Singing Group

A NEW GROUP on campus is the Ohio University Singers. The group, composed of selected singers from the University Chorus, presented its first concert April 24. It sang, under the direction of Jerald Hamilton, selections from Bach, Brahms and others.

Big Bands for J-Prom

ALUMNI AND STUDENTS danced to the music of Tex Beneke and Harry James' bands. The 1960 J-Prom dance was held in the University Center and Jefferson Hall, largest of the University's 17 dormitories.

Large Enrollment Foreseen

ENROLLMENT is up for the fall semester. At the beginning of April, the University began a waiting list for women. Those girls interested in attending Ohio U. who did not apply before April 6 are placed on the waiting list.

More than 1500 applications for 1013 freshman women's dormitory spaces have been processed. This figure is based on the percentage of those who have, in the past, changed their mind since application, according to University College Dean Paulsen.

Applications from male students have not reached the number considered maximum for a capacity 1640 room assignments.

Degrees Granted Abroad

FOR THE first time in Ohio University's 156-year history, degrees were presented outside the United States. While touring Nigeria, President Baker presented master of arts degrees to two Nigerians who completed studies at OU and returned to Ibadan before formal graduation in Athens.

Andrew Odunsi and John Sokoyo studied at Ohio U. in connection with the jointly sponsored US—Nigerian teacher training project.

Memorial Set Up

FORMER STUDENTS and friends of Professor Horace T. Houf are invited to contribute to the purchase of the twelve volume biblical commentary, The Interpreter's Bible, as a memorial to his many years of faithful service as a teacher of Ohio University.

The commentary will be placed in the Reference Room of the Chubb Library.

Professor Houf, who died in July, 1959, had been Professor Emeritus of Philosophy since 1955. He came to Ohio University in 1928, and was chairman of the department of philosophy for many years. Contributions should be sent to Professor Stanley Grean, Department of Philosophy, Ohio University.

Nigerian Project Goes Into Third Year

DR. GILFORD W. CROWELL, assistant dean of the College of Education, will assume the duties of chief of party for a teacher training project in Nigeria beginning this fall. He plans to leave for Africa in June.

The project, now in its second full year of operation at Ibadan in Nigeria's Western Region, is sponsored jointly by the University and the U.S. State Department's International Cooperation Commission.

The training college is staffed with ten Americans, six of them from Ohio U., along with Nigerian teachers and administrators.

During Dr. Crowell's absence, Dr. Russell A. Milliken will become acting assistant dean. Dr. Samuel I. Hicks, professor of education, will become acting director of the Center for Educational Services, another duty now handled by Dr. Crowell.

Band Records for Alumni

THE OHIO UNIVERSITY Concert Band has recorded the songs that are so much a part of the college memories of Ohio U. alumni.

Alma Mater, Ohio and Stand Up and Cheer and Fight for Old O.U. are samples of the songs on the 45 extended play record now available to alumni.

For $1.25 (plus 25c for postage and packaging) you can have one of these new recordings. Write to: Charles Minelli, Ohio University Bands, Athens, Ohio.

NEW MEMBERS of the Nigerian project staff are: (seated) Dorothy Nelson, director of curriculum in Mahoning County; Mary Leonard, assistant professor of school design; Wilma K. Miller, associate professor of physical education; Elizabeth Herbert, teacher, in the Cleveland school system; Helen Richards, professor of education at Grambling College in Louisiana and Margaret Felsing, associate professor of education. Standing: Dr. Gilford W. Crowell, who will be chief of the party for a teacher training project; Dr. William Chase, campus coordinator of the Nigerian project; Richard Kidd, professor and chairman of the business and economics department of Central State College and Edwin G. Charle, assistant professor of business administration.

Air Force Steps Up Education Program

A RECENT development in the Air Force Strategic Air Command's educational policy appears destined to more than double the scope of Ohio University's branch program at Lockbourne Air Base, Columbus.

Termed "Operation PDQ", the project is interpreted as "Professional Development through Quality." Its ultimate goal: A college degree for every SAC officer and at least a high school diploma for every enlisted man.

Admittedly aiming at an illusive target, SAC nevertheless intends to send up an ambitious barrage of educational flac.

To lay the groundwork at Lockbourne, three men met last month with

Dean of the Ohio University Branches Albert C. Gubitz. They were Nathan Altschuler, chief of education for the Eighth Air Force; Lt. Robert Brown, chief of individual training at Lockbourne Air Base; and Charles Mohler, educational director at Lockbourne.

Several problems must be worked out. Most formidable is the need for developing a class schedule that will bridge gaps between University semesters and Air Force training periods. But the group determined it would be done.

Apparent results are that the current program of 12 courses now being offered through the OU Branches at Lockbourne will go up to 24 this September. The figure may triple in 1961, the group believes.

Branches Wage Battle Against Teacher Shortage

ONE OF the weapons in a lingering war against the teacher shortage in Ohio is found at the six branch colleges of Ohio University.

At the branches several hundred students are preparing for teaching careers under the Cadet Teachers program offering scholarships covering registration, laboratory and miscellaneous fees. In most cases they are students who would not even be attending college were it not for the Cadet Program.

Here is how the program works:

Enrolling as a cadet, a student begins a two-year course of study based on a broad liberal background with some concentration on direct profes-

A PIONEERING SPIRIT

Reprinted from Chillicothe Gazette

CHILLICOTHE, first capital of Ohio, is used to pioneering and appears not to have lost its pioneering spirit.

For the second time in a decade and a half it is pioneering in the field of education. Today's announcement that Chillicothe Branch of Ohio University will go to daytime operation for a limited number of students this fall represents a forward step which no other branch of state universities has taken. It will be recalled that Chillicothe, along with Portsmouth and Zanesville, was among the first branch colleges established with the influx of veteran students after World War II and, to the credit of Ohio University and these communities, it must be noted that they have operated successfully for 14 years on late afternoon and night schedules of classes. Hundreds of students, who otherwise might not have had the opportunity, got their start in higher education at the branch.

Decision to go to a daytime operation while continuing the nighttime classes comes at an opportune time and presents a challenge to Ohio University and to the people of the community. There is another great influx of students seeking higher education. Whether the colleges and universities can accommodate all of them this fall is problematical and the crush of applicants for admission is expected to grow heavier during the next decade.

At least one of the state universities already has closed its enrollment for next fall. Ohio University, as far as its campus at Athens is concerned, is facing the necessity of closing the entrance doors in a short time, probably a matter of weeks. Where will the other applicants go? Chillicothe may be able to provide the answer for some of them. At least, the opportunity will be offered.

Negotiations are under way to make classrooms available at the beautiful new First Presbyterian Church which would stand out among the buildings on any university's campus. Dr. John C. Baker and Dean Albert Gubitzi of Ohio University have promised to provide qualified faculty members equal to those on campus. Local committees will work on obtaining approved living quarters for out-of-town students and part time job opportunities for those who require them.

It will require the complete cooperation of the community to provide facilities that will be attractive to out-of-town students, while continuing to provide for the needs of those ambitious young residents of this immediate area.

There is no assurance how many students may come to the Chillicothe Branch from other areas of Ohio, but the opportunity is here and may not exist elsewhere. The branch offers the same high standards, the same credits and the same calibre of instructors as any state campus. Local citizens, we are sure, will provide other needs of the students.

The seed is sown in fertile ground which nurtured the nighttime branch for 14 years. Who knows, as the pressure for enrollment increases, it may blossom into a regular campus with permanent buildings and full-time operation. We can help to make that dream come true.

sional preparation. The latter includes supervised practice teaching in local elementary schools. Cadets are trained only for elementary teaching.

After satisfactorily completing the program, the cadet is granted a four-year provisional certificate, enabling her to begin full-time teaching in Ohio.

Each four years she must complete a minimum of 24 additional semester hours until receiving a bachelor's degree. So, if she progresses only at the minimum rate required by state law, she will receive her degree in eight to ten years.

Most cadet teachers, however, have been completing degree work much sooner in order to get earlier advantage of having a bachelor's degree. With 62 hours of credit completed when they receive their initial teaching certificates, the cadets can complete all requirements for a degree by attending four summer sessions at OU.

Endorsement of the Program

Hundreds of elementary teachers who received provisional certificates

during the past few years are now teaching in all sections of Ohio and in many other states. Their teaching records are endorsements of the program and its effectiveness in relieving the critical teaching shortage in elementary schools.

About 120 Cadet Teachers are expected to receive certificates from branches in Chillicothe, Ironton, Lancaster, Martins Ferry, Portsmouth and Zanesville in June. This represents a small, but important program in the over-all academic structure of branch colleges.

Bobcat Roundup

By Rowland Congdon, '49

WITH THE close of the Winter Sports season throughout the Mid-American Conference, the seven teams were in competition for the All-Sports Trophy to be awarded at the end of Spring Sports in May.

The giant 36-inch trophy is being donated by the Bowling Green Sentinel Tribune newspaper and Radio Station WFOB of Fostoria.

It is awarded on the basis of total points collected through the school year in the nine sports in which conference schools compete against each other. These are football, cross country, basketball, wrestling, swimming, baseball, golf, tennis, and track.

Based on a 7-6-5-4-3-2-1 point system, seven points for a first place, six for a second, etc., the trophy will be a rotating award with each winner receiving a plaque as a permanent award.

Through the winter sports, Bowling Green leads with 30½ points, Miami is second with 25½, Ohio U. third, 24; Western Michigan, 20½; Kent State, 16; Toledo, 12½, and Marshall, 5.

The Bobcats have garnered over half of their points for the five sports so far in football and basketball. They were awarded six and seven, respectively, for these sports for their second and first place finishes. In addition, OU got four points for its fourth-place cross country finish; three points for wrestling, and four points for swimming.

Both Ohio U. and Western Michigan have been dominant over the years in spring sports. The Bobcats, by winning championships in baseball and golf, and finishing high in tennis and track, have a good chance of winning the trophy.

WHEN OLD FOES MEET

REUNITED at a lunch in the University Center recently, Kermit Blosser (left) and Ralph Teague talked over their last meeting, on a wrestling mat in the Olympic tryouts of 1932. Teague, a salesman from Aurora, Ill., was passing through Athens, so he stopped in to see the OU golf and assistant basketball coach. In 1932, Blosser pinned Teague in the 191-pound finals of the NCAA, to become the only OU national wrestling champion in history. Teague, wrestling for Southwestern State Teachers College of Oklahoma, came back to defeat Blosser in the Olympic tryouts. That was the last the two had seen of each other until this year. Teague represented the U.S. in the Olympics and went on to win NCAA heavyweight titles in 1933 and 1934.

Baseball

So far, the baseball team leads the pack after the first two weekends of play. Weather has been the champion so far, however. Every team had been affected through the first two weeks.

Scheduled for two games each weekend, OU was able to play only two, one with Marshall at home, winning 9-1, and one at Bowling Green, winning 7-1. This put the Bobcats out in front with a 2-0 record. Kent State was 2-1, Miami 1-1, Toledo, Marshall and Bowling Green, each 0-1, and Western Michigan was unable to play any of its four games, none of which will be rescheduled.

Coach Bob Wren was concerned about an inexperienced pitching staff at the start of the season, but felt he would have one of his better hitting teams. The pitching has been a little better than expected and the hitting has lived up to expectations.

Consequently, through the seven games played to date, OU has won six and lost one. They have won six in a row since losing the opener to Michigan State here. The Spartans were returning from a Southern trip and had played eight games prior to meeting the Bobcats, who were opening their season. OU jumped off to a 4-0 lead, but was beaten 10-7.

After that, OU has defeated West Virginia Wesleyan, 12-3; Marshall, 9-1; Findlay, 19-5; Bowling Green, 7-1; Wright-Patterson AFB, 6-4 and 13-1. The last four games were played as part of the team's Spring vacation trip.

Tom Kochendorfer, junior from Toledo, and Ed Pentecost, junior from Hamilton, have done the bulk of the pitching, with assistance from Ted Stute, sophomore from Enon, who is a tackle on the football team. Kochendorfer had pitched 17 innings, with a 2-0 record and 0.5 earned run average. Pentecost had a 1-0 record in 25 innings, with a 2.2 earned run average. Stute was 3-0 in 10 innings, with an 0.9 ERA.

Leading hitters were Sophomore outfielder Larry Thomas, Grove City, with a .469 batting average; shortstop Bob Maver, senior co-captain, from Cleveland, and third baseman Dale Bandy, Portsmouth senior, both having .414 averages. Sophomores Bob Wandersleben and Joe Nossek, both from Euclid, had .353 and .321, respectively.

As a team, the Bobcats were hitting .325.

Golf

Coach Kermit Blosser's golfers, a veteran crew with nine lettermen, opened their season by winning the Greenbrier Invitational Tournament at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., for the third year, and then defeated Ohio Wesleyan, Bowling Green, Wittenberg, Virginia Tech, Navy, William and Mary, and George Washington. Only defeat to this writing was to Ohio State.

Blosser arranged a scenic Spring trip for the golfers and the boys obliged by winning all four matches.

The team visited Annapolis, home of the Naval Academy, playing Navy and William & Mary there the Saturday before Easter. They spent Easter Sunday sightseeing in Washington, D. C., and played George Washington University there the Monday following.

Bob Bryant, Ed Gordon, Bill Gore, Dow Reichley, Bill Santor, Larry Snyder, Bill Terlesky, Bill Turner and Charles Vandlik are the mainstays of the team. All but Gordon are seniors who have been playing as a team for three years, winning the Mid-American Conference title the first two.

and one Ohio Intercollegiate championship, finishing second the other year.

Track

The track team of Coach Stan Huntsman won its first dual meet from Kentucky and then hosted the Ohio U. Relays with 10 other college teams participating, including several from out of state, and some outstanding individuals. These included Glenn Davis, former Ohio State world record holder, and Ohio U.'s former star dash man of the past few years, Les Carney. Davis and Carney were warming up for Olympic Trials to be held this summer.

Dual meets followed with Ohio State and Central State, and both were losses for the Bobcats.

Bob Harrison, St. Louis, Mo., senior, and John Balough, Chillicothe, junior, were two of the outstanding individuals for the cindermen. Harrison was a consistent winner in the hurdles, high jump and broad jump events, while Balough specialized in the dashes and as a participant on relay teams.

Tennis

Coach Fletcher Gilders, in his first year as tennis coach, hoped his veteran team could do better than recent Bobcat tennis groups. Never higher than a fourth-place finisher in conference meets in recent years, the netters this year won their first two dual matches, both against conference opponents, Bowling Green and Marshall.

It was hoped that they could bring a high finish and important trophy points. Mainstays of the team are Dick Emde, Dayton; Paul Gates, Middletown; Frank Hartman, Massillon, and Rick Jantz, Lakewood.

With the Mid-American Conference spring meets in track, golf and tennis to be held at Ohio U. on May 20 and 21, chances that the Bobcats can do well are enhanced by performing before home crowds. The baseballers will have finished their conference play by then, and may know whether they will have won their sixth conference title.

The Class of 1950 Issues a Challenge

EARLY IN APRIL a group of Ohio University alumni representing the class of 1950 met to make plans for a 10th reunion on June 4. Their objective: To have as many classmates return for Alumni Day as all the other reunion classes combined.

An ambitious undertaking to be sure; nevertheless the group, headed by Class Secretary Milt Taylor, has set out to accomplish its goal.

Personal letters are being written, urging members of the class of 1950 to be on hand for the June get together. Twenty-five members of the class are being contacted personally and are being asked to write letters to their friends.

Taylor, an optimist with the reputation of attaining prodigious heights, is convinced his class will fill one of the University's new dormitories (Lincoln Hall, newest of the 12 East Green dormitories).

The group points to several accomplishments as evidence that it can reach its objective:

1. Largest five-year reunion ever. In 1955 the class held an Alumni Day reunion described by Alumni Secretary Marty Hecht as the "largest five-year gathering in the 100-year history of the Alumni Association."

2. Most honor members. Despite its relative youth, the class of 1950 can boast of the most honor memberships of any alumni class (19).

3. Class activity since its last reunion. Not content to lapse into latency from one reunion to the next, the class has kept its presence known. A gift committee, headed by Mary Hughes Berry and including Pat Collins, Dick Bitters, Ed Sudnick and John Good, has carried out a successful campaign, now completed, so that a class gift will be presented to Ohio University at the June reunion.

In the interest of truth and justice, it should be pointed out that the class of 1950 has another point in its favor. It is the largest class (1351) ever to be graduated from Ohio University.

The core of class workers making plans for the Commencement Weekend return to the campus is counting on classmates to back up its claims by making early plans for a June 4 meeting.

Secretary Taylor has issued the challenge: "The class of 1950 will return in such numbers that the front steps of the University Center will be filled for our class photograph and a wide angle lens will have to be used to get us all in."

Those who already have made plans to attend are:

Classes Being Challenged Are:

1900 - 1905 - 1910 - 1915

1920 - 1925 - 1930 - 1935

1940 - 1945 - - 1955

A COMPLETE program for all classes, particularly those having official reunions, has been planned by the Alumni Association for Commencement Weekend. Some of the features of Alumni Day, June 4, are bus tours for reunion classes . . . the annual alumni luncheon . . . certificate of merit award presentations . . . class photographs . . . the popular commencement supper on the college green . . . class round-ups in the evening . . . free movies . . . the president's reception . . . and a dormitory or dormitory area for each reunion class. Graduation exercises are held the following day on the college green.

Retirement Can Be Busy Too

DR. AND MRS. DILLEY

MOST MEN when they reach retirement are content to imbibe athletics from the vantage of a spectator. Not so with Frank Dille. At 74 he still prefers participation to spectator sports. In the summer he is a league golfer who shoots in the mid-40's. During the winter he takes to the bowling lanes, where he remains one of the top scorers in the faculty league.

A relaxed smile and soft spoken manner belie the amount of energy wrapped up in the still-trim figure of the former Ohio University director of admissions. Never one to expend energy on ebullience or artificial exercise, he conserves it for use in sports or community activities. He is still in determined pursuit of his all-time bowling high of 263 and his low of 38 on the fairways.

Dr. Dille always has been interested in athletics; as an undergraduate student at Miami University he competed in baseball, basketball and tennis. Later, while teaching high school mathematics, he doubled as a football coach.

But sports represent only a few of his varied interests. A member of the Sessions of the First Presbyterian Church of Athens, he also serves as a Presbyterian of the Scioto Presbytery, attending frequent district meetings and playing an active role in church activities. As treasurer and a director of the Southeastern Ohio Guidance Center, he helps administer a program offering free guidance and psychiatric treatment to hundreds of men, women and children in the Athens area.

And no profile on Dr. Frank B. Dille would be complete without a comment on his devotion to the cause of contract bridge. The sound of a 52-card shuffle is a call to arms, and he will plunge into a game of bridge at the drop of a trump. For years he has been associated with an avid group known as the "Wednesday Night League", where bridge is king, queen and ace once a week. More recently he and his wife have become active in a city bridge league affiliated with the American Open Bridge Association.

As Dr. Dille puts it, "The difference in being retired isn't that you suddenly have nothing to do, but that you have the opportunity to make out your own schedule."

This self-made schedule still begins early in the morning—about 6:30 or 7:00—when he gets up, has breakfast, watches Dave Garroway and reads the morning paper. In mid-morning he drives from the Dille's hilltop home on Columbia Avenue to Quick's Drug Store where he helps coffee breaking friends cure the ills of the world. Afternoons and evenings provide the time for his sports, community and church activities.

Mother of the Year

But in the field of civic activities, he hastens to point out, he is a rank novice when compared with his wife, Geneva. A leader in the Church, the Red Cross, and many special civic committees, Mrs. Dille this year was named Ohio Mother of 1960, becoming a candidate for the title of American Mother of 1960.

A look at the lives of their three sons and one daughter offers further evidence as to the merit of Mrs. Dille's top state honor. Son Joe, a music teacher and assistant principal at Rushford, Minn., has composed several songs published for band use. Daughter Ann is married to Marvin White, an executive of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. in Columbus. Frank, Jr., an ordained minister and teacher of religion and philosophy at Smith College, has just completed requirements for his doctor's degree from Columbia. The youngest of the four and the only one not yet married, James is working toward a doctorate in physics at Syracuse.

When the family gets together, the meeting qualifies as an Ohio University alumni event. Joe and his wife, Marilyn (Grant) both received bachelors degrees at OU, as did Ann and her husband, Marvin. Frank, Jr., his wife, Jane (Long) and James all received bachelors and masters degrees from OU.

That makes a total of ten Ohio University degrees in the family. Only exceptions, ironically, are the parents. Dr. Dille received his A.B. from Miami and his Ph.D. from Columbia. Mrs. Dille graduated from Ohio Wesleyan. Both parents and two sons, Frank, Jr., and James, are members of Phi Beta Kappa.

Soon after coming to Athens as principal of the University's John Hancock High School in 1920, Frank Dille bought a house in the country. Since then, time has seen him in overlapping careers as professor, registrar, director of admissions and university examiner, before his retirement in 1956. Meanwhile, the scene around him has changed until he and his wife find their "home in the country" now in the residential area of the city.

But time has made few alterations in the spirit of Frank Dille. This just might be the summer he cards that 37 on the golf course.

Honor Membership

NEXT MONTH the Honor Membership program will be four years old. In that short time the group has grown from 17 members in June of 1956, to 505 at the present time.

Those who have joined the Honor Membership ranks have discovered that there are two-fold gains to such an investment. In addition to receiving the OHIO ALUMNUS Magazine and other mailings for life, the Honor Member has the gratifying feeling of assisting his University through the Alumni Association.

According to the regulations of the account, each $100 Honor Membership must be invested in the Irreducible Debt Fund and only the interest can be used to publish the magazine and maintain the association.

In this issue are the names of the Ohio U. alumni who have given a permanent contribution to their school. The Honor Membership form can be found on page 34.

Alumni Together With Finance Firm

by Beverly Lewis

Donald E. McMichael

WHEN students graduate from college, their paths tend to separate. Sometimes, though, graduates meet others from the same university. They may even work for the same firm.

Such was the case of two Ohio University alumni who have become executives in the Beneficial Finance Company System. This system is known throughout the nation, and the two men have worked in many of its offices.

Donald E. McMichael, '26, is now President of Beneficial Management Corporation and of Beneficial Financial Company of Canada. George R. Evans, '33, is assistant Supervision Director of Beneficial Finance in New York City.

Lived in Many Cities

While at Ohio University, Mr. McMichael was a member of TKE fraternity. Upon his graduation in 1926, he became Assistant Manager of Beneficial in its Akron, Ohio, office.

Before becoming president of the Corporation in 1959, he managed offices in Detroit, Columbus, Milwaukee, and Indianapolis. In 1933, he was made Supervisor of the Cleveland Division, and Supervision Director of the Eastern Division in 1936. Life in Arizona Inspires Legend

Marilyn Francis, '41

NOW IN PRINT is "Thunder in the Superstitions" by Marilyn Francis. This poem deals with the legend of the superstitions about Superstition Mountains near Phoenix, Arizona.

This poem won the Ohio University graduate a second prize in a national poetry contest sponsored by the National Writers Club. She has also won first prize in the Ohio Emerson Poem Contest (1955) and second prize in the Avalon International Poetry Contest (1956). She won first prizes in the Arizona State Poetry Contests also.

Those in Miss Francis' class may remember that she went to New Jersey for personnel work with Western Electric following graduation. When did the switch take place? It was later in the 1940's that the opportunity came for Miss Francis to devote herself to writing poetry.

In 1951 the move was made to Arizona. After much study and a good deal of hard work, the results began to show. Since 1955 she has had over 70 poems published in periodicals of the United States and Canada; i.e., The Saturday Evening Post, The Connecticut Literary Review, Desert Magazine and many more.

Miss Francis keeps extremely busy when she is away from the typewriter also. She is director of the Phoenix Poetry Workshop, president of the National League of American Pen Women, member of the Poetry Society of America and the National Writer Club.

She is editor of the poetry column "Sandtracks" in The Arizonian, Arizona's unusual weekly newspaper. Recently she has given special lectures on poetry to gifted children and judges their poetry contests.

Campus Flashbacks

30 YEARS AGO—Football at Ohio U. this year needs no review for most students. Totalling 313 points against only 13 for their opponents, the Bobcats remain one of the outstanding teams in the country, never coming within the shadow of defeat. A new stadium, modern, complete in every detail, was dedicated this year in token of a foresight which looks forward to new champions in future years.

25 YEARS AGO—Ohio University's answer to the limited finances of some men students is to be found in the Palmer House. Only those students who have stated that they must live on a very restricted income are considered for assignment to this unit. The University furnishes bedding, light, and heat to the students, and in return these boys pay the university $1.25 a week room rent and divide the cost of board equally among the 65 who live there.

20 YEARS AGO—Jack Teagarden, with an orchestra featuring "16 men and a girl," provided the music for the 1940 Senior Ball held in the Men's Gymnasium. Dancers at the Engineers' Ball enjoyed the musical offerings of Larry Clinton and his Dipsy Doodle Orchestra. Both of the dances, which now rank as major social events on the campus, were well attended, the former by 500 couples and the latter by more than a thousand co-eds and their escorts.

15 YEARS AGO—Flying lessons are available to individuals at the Ohio University Airport. Courses are offered to those wishing to obtain a private or commercial pilot certificate, all at the reasonable cost of $257.50 for the complete training. A special two-year curriculum is offered in airline hostess training which meets the general educational requirements set by many airline companies. And for those persons really interested in aeronautics, a four-year engineering program leading to a degree is offered.

10 YEARS AGO—Crest, a men's honor fraternity on campus, has launched what it hopes will become an Ohio U. tradition. These men have designated May 9 and 10 as "Howdy Day" on the OU campus green. This movement is designed to promote friendliness among students, acquainted and unacquainted. (Although this plan did not follow through the years, Ohio U. has retained the spirit of its purpose.)

5 YEARS AGO—Enrollment in Ohio University's three branch divisions in Chillicothe, Portsmouth and Zanesville reached an all time high of 771 students and a faculty of some 70 instructors. Four of the 13 Phi Beta Kappas on the OU campus in 1955 had their start at the branches. This was the first year that cadet teaching certificates were presented at the branch colleges. (Since 1955 three additional branches have been opened in Ironton, Lancaster and Martin's Ferry. The enrollment is now 2008 with a faculty membership of 186.)

New Offer—

Ohio University

Side Chairs

To Match Your Arm Chair

Now in addition to the adult chair with its cherry arms in natural finish, you can have a side chair of the same solid birch construction. On the back is the official Ohio University seal in gold. And for the ladies, there is a special thumb-back side chair, which has additional gold trim.

Fit Any Decorating Scheme

All of the Ohio University chairs fit either a traditional or contemporary decor and are equally at home in the living room, library, study, television room, dining room or office. Each chair is finished in dull black with rings of gold on legs and rungs. You will find each comfortable and attractive.

UPPER RIGHT is the Ohio University Side Chair—from seat to top of back, 20 inches and the seat is 18 inches wide and 16½ deep. Ladies chair, lower corner, is 17 inches from seat to top of back. The seat is 15½ inches deep and 17 inches wide.
